Sights

"Paris of the Orient" – the beauty and charm of Budapest are due above all to its wonderful location. Like Paris, it is divided by a river, and lies on both banks of the Danube. The river is embraced by the plain of Pest on one side, and by hilly Buda on the other. Buda – with its Citadella, the Royal Palace, the Fisherman's Bastion – offers a breathtaking view of Pest and the bridges connecting the two parts of the city. The contemporary image of the city emerged in the latter half of the 19th century, with architectural monuments like the Parliament, the Basilica, the Opera House, the Millennial Memorial, the Museum of Fine Arts, and many others worth seeing. Apart from being the heart of Central Europe, Budapest is a charming, rushing metropolis.

Food & entertainment

Combining the pleasure of Hungarian and international cuisine, the restaurant quickly acquired fame not only in Hungary but also abroad, and today the master chefs of the Szondi Lugas Restaurant, who entice guests with their mouth watering creations, faithfully keep up traditions. Famous Hungarian wine regions are represented in the wine selection of the restaurant from Tokaj on the North-Eastern border to Sopron on the Western part of the country bearing the special taste and character of the soil and the grapes grown there.

The Zsolnay Café welcomes guests during the day. Aromatic coffee and tea specialties, home made cakes, sandwiches and drinks are served in the café offering an ideal setting to meet business partners, friends or to read newspapers or simply to relax. The Kupola Bar awaits guests in the evenings.

The Radisson SAS Béke Hotel is an ideal site for various social events. Conferences and lavish receptions are held in the 4 large air-conditioned banqueting halls or in the recently built conference centre opening from the lobby, where different setups can be made with movable walls – variable in capacity and size. Altogether 500 guests can be seated on two levels with our fully trained staff in attendance. The experience in the organisation of programs and the professional staff will grant the success.
